

Waldo,

On behalf of all the attendees, I would like to thank you for your excellent half-day leadership workshop at our recent planning meeting. Your unlimited energy and compelling message of the power of teamwork and courageous leadership injected the inspiration we needed to make the most of this critical meeting.

Waldo, you proved yourself a highly versatile speaker, and you had us riveted from the start with your wealth of thrilling leadership stories and your remarkable ability to think on your feet. Your approach combined the panache of a fighter pilot, the knowledge of a business commentator, the focus of an executive consultant, and the wisdom of a sage. If you can connect with our CEO and senior executives like you did, then I can easily imagine you connecting with managers of all levels in our company.

You were engaging without being flippant, you were motivating without being overly "motivational," and you were highly prepared without being "canned." I was most impressed with the way you worked so hard to customize your message for Walsh Construction and this specific meeting. It was obvious that you had done your research and that you were well grounded in our culture and business when making your remarks.

Later at dinner, you would have been pleased to hear many of your one-liners repeated over and over again. The other diners at the restaurant were more than a little startled each time we yelled "PUSH IT UP!" in unison.

Waldo, you were key to the success of our planning meeting, and we look forward to working with you again in the near future.
